Cause-Effect Reading Organizer American Revolution

Directions: History is made up of cause and effect relationships. When one thing happens in history, it usually causes a series of other things. One event is the cause and the events that follow can be seen as an effect. Below, you will see a series of Cause-Effect Reading Organizers. Each organizer identifies an event or term from the reading that played a role in the American Revolution. Your job is to complete the information in the organizers. Provide an explanation of each event in the space provided. Then describe the effect this event had on American colonists.
